WEBINAR AGENDA: Leading at the highest levels takes exceptional preparation and commitment. Today's nurse leaders have the opportunity to impact many facets of today's healthcare market. Leadership at all levels play an essential role in effective healthcare transformation. Hospital administrators and nursing leaders must understand the value of proactively managing the day-to-day operations and clinical activities to improve performance. By creating an environment that promotes safety, accountability and collaboration these leaders can mitigate failure and optimize innovation that improves the delivery of safe and effective care. The personal guidance of today's nurse leaders is critical in the success of any change management initiative. In this presentation, attendees will learn how to address obstacles that prevent their departments from achieving high performance in clinical and financial outcomes. Additionally economic and strategic consideration as they relate to an ever-changing healthcare environment will be discussed.

During the presentation participants will learn:
